

Poetry

A Jejune Joycean

Jefferey Simons

James Joyce's "jejune jesuit" touched my ear as a thumping drum played by new moon palms.

The air alight with the light Andalusian blue bears the joyous voice in turned prelude to two souls soon to sing as one.

Let there be light in the love of my soft, breathing sound.